"Christ in the Psalms"
Summary of The Glory of Christ and His Bride
Psalm 45
Wayne Shelton

Psalm 45

This year (2020) has shaken idols, uprooted comforts, reminded us of our mortality, and brought a new awareness of the brokenness around us. As this difficult year draws to a close, Advent gives us the opportunity to voice both the unwavering hope we have in Jesus and the longing cry, "How long, O Lord?" And when that long-awaited Day of rejoicing comes, it will be all the more glorious for the ache we experience now, like the dawn after a long darkness, or a distant garden blooming in the desert. If we let it, 2020 can whet our appetite for the kingdom of God and for Jesus, her glorious King. Psalm 45 prepares us for the Bridegroom. This second Sunday of Advent we will open the Word of the Lord to Psalm 45 to revel in the glory of the King and of his bride, the church.
